SUPPLY CHAIN LOGISTICS FOR THE PRACTITIONER

Atlanta, GA– April 2006: Imported Medical Supplies recently arrived at Amware’s Atlanta, GA location. Our most recent Customer addition has streamlined a supply chain which encompasses production overseas, containerized movements, and individualized distribution throughout the lower 48-States. They have chosen Amware to manage their domestic market so to ensure client-level service excellence.

“As a high-value product we have taken all necessary precautions in both our product handling and storage methodologies”, says Elizabeth Montgomery, General Manager of Amware’s Atlanta, GA facility. “These goods are being imported for medical practitioners, professionals; they deserve an extremely elevated care level when working with their products - Amware’s Craftsmen have already exceeded their expectations”.

Amware Logistics is strongly positioned to play key strategic roles in our customers' supply-chains whether their products are raw materials used in building construction or finished goods prepped for our hospitals and doctors' offices. Our Craftsmen have been trained and continue to train for a myriad of product movement scenarios, cutting edge warehouse management techniques, and customer service right out to the dock door. Amware is proud of their highly trained Craftsmen and is equal to whatever task our Customers have in store.
