HOLIDAY WRAPPING SUPPLIES

Atlanta, GA – January 2006:
Assorted Christmas decorations, wrapping paper, and gift boxes were delivered to Amware’s Atlanta, Georgia facility early this month, in preparation for the holiday rush.

So to achieve economies of scale, our customer has elected to ship full truckload quantities, directly from the manufacturer, to our forward stocking location in the Southeast. From this perch in Atlanta, our customer will be able to guarantee their patrons efficient delivery lead-times and quality responsiveness.

Pallets of product will remain in inventory throughout the year, with replenishments scheduled periodically and ramp-up deliveries expected by the end of summer.

“This is the inherent benefit to working with third-party warehousemen like Amware”, says Tommy Stegall, Supervisor at Amware Distribution Warehouse. “Our customers can use our facility as often or as infrequent as their seasonal needs are; it's our job to adjust around them so that they can maintain flexibility. Product comes in, product goes out, and they are only responsible for their reasonable share of expenses – when they don't need the space, their not stuck with otherwise fixed costs!"

Amware Craftsmen, like Tommy Stegall, take pride in their ingenuity and foresight. They enjoy the day to day orchestration of our customers' need fluctuations and excel at the balancing act of product in and product out – that's what sets Amware apart. Our Craftsmen are dedicated, resourceful, and good at what they do. We take pride in them... we know you will to.
