FORWARD COOKING STOCK

Denver, CO – November 2004: Today, Amware Logistics opened its doors to America's oldest cooking equipment manufacturer. Since 1838, this new client has been manufacturing and distributing high quality industrial and residential cooking equipment across the country and in overseas markets.

In effort to strengthen market share, they identified a handful of key markets where a forward stocking location could speed their turn-around time and provide their local customers immediate product support & replacement parts; and afford them with an easy option for add-on sales capabilities. As of November 1st, they have begun delivering product to our Denver, Colorado facility for just this purpose.

In the near future, this client plans to expand their association with Amware to our Atlanta, Georgia facility. Atlanta would be another key market place where an on-hand inventory of product could greatly help the local sales force in getting products to customers quickly.
